Charlie opens the meeting congratulating everyone for their hard work this past weekend. This Friday we have hockey vs. Princeton and Saturday we will be having a work party during the day. We are going to try to get in one more creative session before the end of the semester. There will be a "Lego" event upcoming, which may be paid. Next semester we will be shooting some women's Hockey games as well. Charlie notes that overall this meeting sucks because there is an IEA exam tomorrow so there aren't many people here.

Today Kyle Mackenzie met with some people at EMPAC to discuss partnerships between EMPAC and RPI TV. We will get to use all of their cool stuff, and possibly film an event somewhere on campus and broadcast it live using EMPAC's production equipment. More people comment that this meeting is boring, and ask Charlie to do something exciting. The meeting is adjourned.
