We had 70 viewers of our live stream of the legends of 85 discussions. The office of alumni relations really loved our production. Geoff wants to give RPITV a donation.

We will be shooting women's hockey on Saturday at 4pm. We will meet at 1pm in the closet. We will be letting people do things that they normally do not do.

Volunteers:

Andrew Tamoney, Charlie Emala, Alex Niaura (tentative), Tiffany Milano, Andrew Armenia, Scott Altman, Michael DiTore, Reilly Hailton, Sean Andrese, James Petranik, Jon Goldszmidt

A part of RPITV's goal is to communicate things better to the RPI community. Student Leaders are going on a series of benchmarking trips to find out about residential models at other schools. Mike DiTore and Andrew Tamoney will be going with a group of leaders to MIT to do this benchmarking.

We cleaned up the office. It looks spectacular and we got rid of about 60 VHS tapes thanks to a nice old lady who likes to record shows on VHS.

Jon has developed a new bin management system, termed Flagship TV Station We swapped bins 4 & 5. So Instead of taking bins 1,2,3,5 to productions, we will take 1,2,3,4. We also have color coded cables.

The website sort of works now. Even if you use IE.

Tiffany is not going to go over her operations report, we already went over it. Then she mentions about digitizing all our form

Kyle says we have $2000 some dollars. We will be purchasing 20 DVcam tapes and 100 DVC tapes. We will be buying 15 male connectors and 15 female connectors.

Alex is sending everyone a flyer about the film festival.

Andrew says we are doing hockey on Saturday. The Sopranos production is going well too.

Mackenzie has two productions in mind, but we're not ready to produce them yet. It's a busy weekend, so maybe we will do it next weekend.

James says that there are a lot of events that we aren't doing. Fortunately, we're doing some in the future though. Players are doing an evening of performances. They would like us to record one of these evenings. We haven't decided to do it yet, but we could be paid if we do it. The ballroom team wants us to record a production on Friday, but we are busy so we are not going to do it.

Sean says we are doing hockey on Saturday at 1pm. Haris will be producing.

Jon says that we're doing 48 hour coverage of Genericon. Except that we're not actually going to be recording for all 48 hours. We have been given 3 times to complete housing policy interviews. We have unanimously chosen to do it on February 18th at 3pm. Email Jon Goldszmidt for more details.
