Brian Michalski took the Mac to the applestore to get it warrantied and when the parts came in, without our hard drives in the Mac, it actually booted. So, the applestore didn't do us much good as there is still a problem with the Mac. Our next step is to replace the broken hard drive, and Brian is working on getting it running. We have to catch the Mac not working right and then we can get the applestore to cough up some new parts.

The Acer Monitor's DVI port has been damaged, but VGA still is working. Tiffany is working on getting it warrantied. We're also purchasing an additional monitor. It's broken because of Andy Clark's malicious computer. He knew about the malfunction but neglected to report it to RPITV when giving us said computer.

The Activities Fair is this Thursday. We have a much bigger sign, so we'll get much bigger students.

The LUL show, Cultural Pride Night, to be held on 9/18 has just been approved by the Executive Committee. It has been approved as a general interest production. (10-0-0)

The Rugby team had requested that we record their games. They play at Anderson field, but that seems to be a very bad location to do a shooting. We're going to tell them we would reconsider their proposal, if they would play at a more rpitv friendly location. It's just too hard to shoot at Anderson.

There is some minor tension in the room in regards to responding to emails, it is quickly dispelled. Kyle was being rude.

Mozart Requiem probably won't be going on the website. The reason for this was the bad audio. The person who was spearheading the event did not want to release the video until the audio was perfect. We are going to respect his wishes.

The Eggcrate committee (Reilly and James) have decided to purchase an eggcrate and it is $120.00. They are also in charge of a tally light system. They have a quote from A-

Squared Labs for $240.00. We are looking for competing vendors. The eggcrate committee will be a standing committee.

The white balance committee found white balance cards. Reilly doesn't seem to be impressed. Reilly decides to keep the white balance committee active. He requests they do a more thorough search.

The HDD space committee has a couple of options for us. It has chosen a $300 4 Drive NAS solution plus the cost of hard drives. Additionally, it has chosen a $400 dollar server option and that will give us more expandability (up to 8 drives versus 4 drives for the NAS). We're going to go with the server potentially.

The Security System committee would like to replace our current security system. It's going to cost a total of $70 dollars and we would integrate it with the system that is currently in place. (IE we'd still use our current security cameras).

Kyle has decided to close the Gaffer's tape committee. Did I spell Gaffer's right, I wonder.

The White Balance meeting has been assigned an additional task: business cards. So they will have two assignments now. Alex is excited by that prospect.

The meeting is adjourned.
